

Honed natural stone and light fixtures that resemble votive candles set a soothing tone.

When these McLean homeowners decided to remodel, they hoped to extend the contemporary look of the rest of their home into the master bath. Punctuated by existing geometrically shaped windows that allow in ample natural light, the newly designed room centers around the uniquely contoured tub with wall-mounted hardware.

But, according to lead designer Marcelo Dobrauchi of Terranova Kitchen and Bath in Vienna, it's the accents—the honed natural stone, the light fixtures that resemble votive candles and the brushed-nickel cabinetry handles—that really spice up the space. "To warm the room with color, I chose a terracotta paint hue and deep earth-toned tiles for the walls."

It's a calm and soothing backdrop for the new remote-controlled steam shower with a rain-shower head, that, says Dobrauchi, "can be pre-programmed with a number of shower experiences."
